

SHILLING'S SUBDIVISIONS

Show More Homes and Better Homes Built Last Year

THAN ANY OTHER SUBDIVISIONS IN CHICAGO HEIGHTS

There Is a Reason! These subdivisions comprise the finest residence property in Chicago Heights. This is no idle assertion. Their development in such a short time abundantly proves this fact. Louis B. Schilling was the first local real estate man to undertake the development of the territory west of the creek. He had faith in the city, and shrewd judgment, and foresaw that this was the section that must ultimately be chosen as the best residence section. The great success of these subdivisions is the best argument to present to prospective Home Seekers.

Mr. Schilling has sold recently, to the following well-known business men, lots on West Sixteenth Street: Ed. W. Clark, Lee Hook, John Eckfeldt, C. B. Murton, Emil Krenich, A. J. Adams, Chauncey Kirby, Geo. C. Brett, and Henry Radajowski. Some of these already built, and others will build in the spring.

Mr. Schilling wishes all his customers, and the people of Chicago Heights in general, "A Merry Christmas" and "A Happy New Year." He returns thanks for the patronage accorded him in the past, and feels assured that his reputation for fair dealing in the past will bring its own reward. At the same time he begs leave to inform the public that Schilling Subdivisions have their limits, but there are still good lots to be had. In his new office, Mr. Schilling will have ample facilities to accommodate patrons, and he requests a continuance of patronage, confident that he has the best property on the market.
